Brickwall.raw

Raw brick panels come in their raw plaster form. They must be painted but can be done so in whatever you wish, allowing for a wide range of styling options. Painting them white is a popular choice. The light reflective quality of the white surface enhances brightness in any space - but choose whatever colour you wish!

Brickwall.london

London panels are inspired by bricks sourced locally in London and around the Thames Valley region. The unique hand painted finish includes shades of cream, yellow, sand and gold colours, enhanced by authentic 'coal-spotted' bricks.

Brickwall.belfast

Belfast brick panels are painted in a blend of red, purple and brown shades offering a traditional look yet contemporary mix of colours and textures. This stylish combination makes them ideal for creating a sleek interior space.

Brickwall.sandstone

Sandstone brick panels align with biophilic design in interior spaces, enhancing both rustic and modern styles. Their natural, earthy tones and subtle colour variations add warmth and character to any room. While sandstone bricks are commonly used in outdoor landscapes, why not bring the same beauty indoors!

Brickwall.limestone

Limestone brick panels bring a sense of calm to your space with their soft, muted colours like beige, cream and light grey making them a versatile choice for any interiors space. Similar to sandstone bricks, the natural colours of limestone complement surrounding biophilic elements, making it an effortless way to connect with nature indoors.

Brickwall.croft

Croft brick panels, as the name suggests, are inspired by the charm of the countryside and agricultural materials. Based in the Shropshire landscape, Innerspace decided to introduce a nostalgic yet elegant colour palette to the brickwall collection. With shades of pink, purple and rustic red, these bricks add warmth to any space.

Brickwall.modern

Brick panels have long-standing tradition and primarily always been clay coloured. By hand painting all our panels, we have the opportunity to explore innovative colour palettes. Our modern brick panels combine sky blues and light greys shades, perfect for designers looking to incorporate the texture and form of bricks in a modern, urban interior.

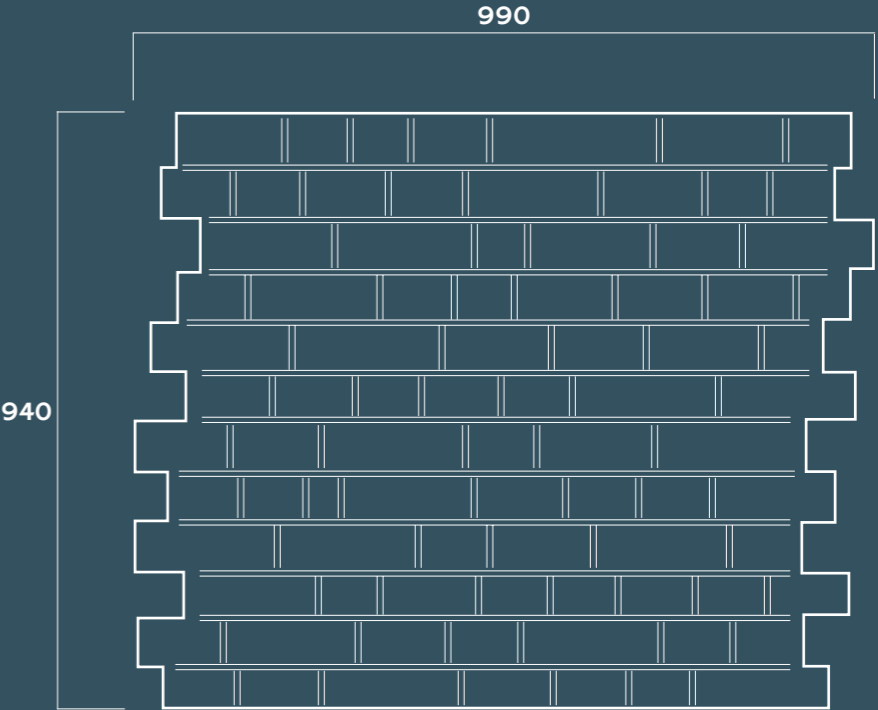

Brickwall.weathered

The dark bricks, featuring hints of green, turquoise and varying grey tones, create a somewhat weathered appearance. When used in rooms with unlimited outdoor light and bright white walls, these bricks provoke a striking contrast. Choosing the panels for your interior is a bold decision, but the results can be truly stunning!
